

The Storm

[Verse 1]

I'm sailing blind
on a lifeless sea,
but the sound is clear
the storm calls to me.

[Verse 2]

I turn the rudder,
I pull the sails,
I try to run
but the current prevails.

[Pre-Chorus]

I travel through the night,
inside a wooden shell,
the wind keeps beating down,
an endless, slow farewell.

[Chorus]

The storm is a calling,
the ship sails on through pain,
this moment we're living,
I don't want to, but it sails again.

[Verse 3]

I grab the oars,
I drop the anchor,
please, oh please,
God of seas, restrain her.

[Verse 4]

Fear and power,
panic, delirium,
focus and motion,
despair becomes life.

[Chorus]

The storm is a calling,
the ship sails on through pain,
this moment we're living,
I don't want to, but it sails again.

[Verse 5]

Matter beyond the line,
where time and truth collide,
pulled into the spiral,

we fall into the void.

[Final]

Lightning and thunder,
the sky turns black,
it's not just night
it may be death itself.

[Chorus]

The storm is a calling,
the ship sails on through pain,
this moment we're living,
I don't want to, but it sails again.
